Join photographer Peter Menzel and Faith D'Aluisio in examining the implications of the modern diet for our personal health and for our planet. This fast-paced lunch presentation will include hundreds of images and stories from scores of countries covered in the duo's award-winning books, What I Eat: Around the World in 80 Diets; Hungry Planet: What the World Eats; and Man Eating Bugs: The Art & Science of Eating Insects. Lunch will be provided. Menzel and D'Aluisio are the co-creators of several other award-winning books, including Material World: A Global Family Portrait; Women in the Material World; Robo sapiens: Evolution of a New Species; and a children's version of Hungry Planet called What the World Eats. Their most recent book, What I Eat: Around the World in 80 Diets, was awarded the Jane Grigson Award by the International Association of Culinary Professionals in 2011. In addition to beautiful photography, their books contain in-depth stories, captions and interviews; copious statistics and relevant essays, and are therefore described as "thinking peoples' photography books." The couple is currently working on a book about death and death rituals around the world.
